Supreme Secretary Warnock Blew Up Bank and Fired on Summoned Here from Boston to Explain.

New Yorkers Want to Know Why Mayor of Ohio Town Led Force They Had to Pay 18 in Three Months.

Supreme Secretary Adam Warnock, of the American Legion of Honor, spent the Farmers and Citizens' Bank at Tiro, the unpleasantest hour of his official career in Terrace Garden, Sixty-eighth early to-day by six robbers, who sestreet and Lexington avenue, last even- cured the contents and escaped. He declared he found the offices in a ramshackle building, with no one in charge but an office boy.

Couldn't Find Officers.

"I inquired for Mr. Warnock, but he was out," said the speaker. "Then I asked in turn for his two sons, his daughter and his nephew, all of whom are under salary as his assistants, but none of them, nor any of the Supreme officers, was on hand." The speaker was cheered, and Mr

Warnock looked uncomfortable. Another speaker asked why the Supreme Council could not pay some of the assessments out of the contingent fund of $403,000, as had been done in a similar emergency, two years ago. when $170,0.0 was voted from the serve for the members' relief.

Mr. Warnock announced that the order owed $202,000 on death benefit claims, and the money had to be raised by assessments, as the Supreme officers could not draw a cent from the contingent fund.

Meeting Breaks Up.

Half the audience rose and left the hall at this point, and Mr. Warnock followed them, announcing that he would take the first train back to Boston. Some members remained and decided to put the matter in a lawyer's hands and to call the attention of the Attorney-General of Massachusetts to the condi-tion of the Order,
